Gillis composed, arranged and conducted for various groups and events such as the Miss Texas Pageant and the Bob Hope road show. ### Scope and Contents

Original works of music, arrangements, jingles, compilations, study books and etudes, and business records document the career of composer Lew Gillis from the 1950s through the 1980s. Contained in the first series are many arrangements scored in Jazz settings. The second series contains works written for specific events such as multiple beauty pageants for towns around the DFW area. There are several jingles written for multiple television and radio stations, along with jingles written for several automobile dealerships. Series three contains many teaching books written by Gillis. The fourth series contains documents associated with Lew Gillis including correspondence from publishers to Mr. Gillis, agreement contracts showing the amount paid to Mr. Gillis for the works he provided, and memos from his composer brother regarding arranging ideas. Also donated are set lists Mr. Gillis created for various events in which he was either conducting or performing.
